HUSTLER HUSTLED...

It's now a popular sport, like football, boxing and other gladiatorial combat, thanks to tennis' "male chauvinist hustler," Bobby Riggs, who got hustled in straight sets by Billie Jean King.

This "battle of the sexes" proves that a 29-year-old woman champion can beat a 55-year-old promoter at his own game, before a huge television audience and the largest audience ever to see a live tennis match at one time.

It was, of course, in Houston's Astrodome Thursday night and about 50,000 people saw Billie Jean win 6-4, 6-3, 6-3 over the pill-popping Riggs.

He made the whole thing possible with an obnoxious attack on women in general and female tennis players. Such preliminaries even into the first set made the whole thing high-voltage promotion tennis has never seen before.

But the circus became serious business when Bobby double faulted the first set to Billie Jean. From then on, the hoop-la turned to the same grim contest of competitive tennis.

He started out in a warmup jacket the first few games, but Billie Jean held service to 2-2. The jacket came off. And she broke his service, held to the 4-5 set score she broke him for the first set.

Billie Jean handled Bobby's various spins and other "trash" shots so well he was never in the match after first set. Her backhand, which is her best ground stroke, was sensational. And she played her usual aggressive net and overhead game, moving him around in backcourt until he wouldn't try for a lot of her crisp volleys.

Billie Jean refused to be conned by the pressure that got Margaret Court in the Mother's Day contest in California. Riggs won easily there by getting out in front with a couple of service breaks. And Margaret Court, the Australian champion, never got started.

Billie Jean has won five Wimbledon championships and several other international tournaments beside Forest Hills, where she defaulted in the third round to nurse apparent illnesses before the Riggs match in Houston.

The money was on Riggs, who talked himself into a post-match mess.

A first line 29-year-old male player could beat Billie Jean in straight sets, like she beat Riggs. But that was not the point nor the reason the country roughly divided over who was going to win. The odds makers are also in trouble as the nation is about 51-49 female over male. And women's libbers will remember this win a long time. Some of them bet.

Riggs is the first guy in tennis to bring out brass bands courtside, lapel buttons, signs and other promotional gee-gaw. In effect, he insulted half of the population to do it and gave pause to the whole tennis world.

He set up the biggest eclipse since Samson and Delilah.

The hustler got hustled.

GROCERS TO HEAR ABOUT STAMP PLAN

The meeting to explain the Food Stamp Program to food wholesalers and retailers in Burleson, Milam and Lee Counties has been announced by Ronald K. Laster, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Food and Nutrition Service, Austin Field Office.

The meeting will be held Tuesday, October 2, at 7:30 p.m. in the Voc. Ag. Bldg. of Caldwell High School, Caldwell. The purpose of the meeting, Laster said, is to acquaint grocers with Food Stamp Program operations and responsibilities and provide to those retail grocers interested in participating, the opportunity to complete their applications for authorization.

To do this, it is imperative that the stores be represented at the meeting by the owner or some other individual who has the authority to contract for and in behalf of the firm and can assume the responsibility of carrying out the provisions of the Food Stamp Program. They should also be able to provide figures on last year's total gross and food sales for their store in order to complete the application form.

According to Laster, these applications will be available to the grocers only at this meeting, and this is why it is very important that any grocer interested in becoming authorized attend the meeting.

Area Roundup

Hyperventilation Fells Students

GEORGETOWN

A dozen or more Copperas Cove students were treated and released at the Georgetown hospital during and after the football game between their school and Georgetown. Some were treated at the field. A doctor said he could find nothing physically wrong with them and he believed the problem was emotional which resulted in hyperventilation. Excitement and breathing too fast can cause numbness, stiffness, tightness in the chest. After the students calmed down they appeared to be recovered.

Cemetery Bans Artificial Flowers

WACO

The Oakwood Cemetery Association board has grabbed a hot potato in the form of a ban on artificial flowers in the cemetery after Nov. 1, but it plans to hold on until the issue cools. The recent ruling has drawn the ire of Wacans who say the decision is unfair and unnecessary. A spokesman for the association says the ruling was made because the artificial flowers, wreaths and ornaments are allowed to fade and deteriorate on graves and then blow across the grounds to create a hazard for those mowing the grass.

Freeze Branding Demonstrated

LAMPASAS

Dr. Elmer Krehbiel, a beef cattle specialist from A&M demonstrated a new method of freeze branding of cattle. He explained that freeze branding is less painful and more humane for the animal and the affected area of skin is less susceptible to infection and the possibility of screwworm infestation is decreased. The freeze branding technique changes the pigment producing cells and after the branding the new hair will be white. Dry ice is used in the branding.

A record total of $30,245 was registered this year for $1 livestock, poultry and rabbits sold. This compares with last years 1972 total auction sales when $18,999.33 was bid.

Shortages: Farmers Fertilizer...

Farmers on the Texas High Plains are experiencing the beginning of a fertilizer shortage that experts say will be nationwide and is very serious - some say food supplies next year are already in jeopardy and that prices are certain to rise.

Higher exports and the shortage of natural gas are blamed for reduced inventories of fertilizer, both phosphorus and nitrogen types. It comes at a time when the Department of Agriculture is predicting record crops next year -- calling for every available acre of land to be planted to help reduce record-high prices for food, and to supply an almost insatiable worldwide need for grains.

"There is a shortage and it's going to get worse," said Skip Hobbs, co-owner of Gulf Farm Center in Cameron, which supplies fertilizer to farmers in this area.

Hobbs said the big problem now is getting railroad cars to deliver fertilizer to retail outlets. "The manufacturers can't get cars to their plants to load up and are able to ship the product overseas, getting a higher price for it," he said. "The manufacturers aren't concerned about our not getting a supply of fertilizer needed right now to put on winter pastures and small grain crops."

Hobbs said it wouldn't do any good for farmers to have increased acreage for planting crops if they don't have the needed fertilizer for them. He noted that production would go down next year due to the fertilizer shortage.

Hobbs said he was able to get some fertilizer shipped to him by contacting the general manager of Santa Fe Railroad in Amarillo.

He said farmers should write their congressmen about the situation, both the shortage of fertilizer and the transportation problem.

Texans are feeling the shortage first, state agricultural officials say because Plains area wheat is the nation's first crop to be planted for the coming year.

Farmers, agricultural agents and fertilizer producers say it is already too late to bring any relief to Texas wheat farmers, who are now planting without fertilizer. Almost nobody predicted the shortage for this fall, but foresaw a pinch next spring in the corn belt.

"It's too late and that is bad for Texas," said Don Collins of the Fertilizer Institute in Washington, explaining a lack of rail transportation and tight supplies.

He said fertilizer manufacturers were exporting much more this year, because Phase 4 rules limit the United States price, but the export price is much higher, pushed up by crop failures in Russia, India, Pakistan and portions of Africa.

USDA is estimating the nation will be short one million tons of phosphorus and 700,000 tons of nitrogen materials, an official said.

...And Paper For Nation's Newspapers

By Alexander Chancellor
Reuters Financial Editor

NEW YORK

Reuter -- The rather cheap-looking paper on which most newspapers are printed has become one of the most desperately sought-after commodities in the world.

The world shortage of newsprint is now so great that newspapers in some countries have been forced to cut down the size of their editions. And the prospects are that the shortage will continue and probably grow worse.

The paper famine threatens to push up the price of newspapers and at the same time to limit one of their most important sources of revenue - advertising.

They simply have not got the paper on which to print the advertisements.

A cause of the shortage has been a steady increase in demand for paper this year by newspapers in western Europe and North America enjoying a boom in advertising.

This, in turn, has been a consequence of the economic boom conditions reigning in these countries.

While demand for paper has been increasing, a number of factors have been at work to limit the world's paper production.

Producers in Scandinavia and Canada - two major sources of the world's newsprint -- are short of machinery and have been working at maximum capacity.

And to make matters worse, Canada has been hit by strikes at nine of its 23 paper mills, while a strike on the railways impeded the supply of raw materials to the mills still operating.

Sweden, a major newsprint exporter, has been unable to boost production sufficiently to deal with the sudden emergency, though it is making efforts to do so.

"We have no problem in coping with demand in Sweden," said a spokesman for the industry. "But we Caesarship At State...

We endorse Senate approval of Henry Kissinger as the new Nixon Secretary of State.

Difficult as it is to imagine, this may be a come-down for Kissinger after spending several years reworking geo-politics on both sides of the old Iron and Bamboo Curtains, not to mention negotiations for the Vietnam denouement.

He well may be the ablest nominee for the job in this century. Most modern presidents are their own secretary of state.

Some might suggest his historic journeys before summits for the President in Peking and Moscow triggered some inflation. Because of his role and Nixon support in these negotiations, what he did not trigger was World War III.

Which, for ol' "Foggy Bottom", is tantamount to a caesarship.

A Wide Audience...

Welcome, Burleson County.

Your Herald is now on newsstands in Caldwell, the fifth Central Texas county in which newsstand distribution has begun.

Herald circulation is following traffic arteries, where the people are, to communities. Broadly speaking, the rural areas are abandoned.

This means not only every community in Milam County, and others in Bell, Falls, Robertson Counties, but Burleson County gets Milam area news at newsstands and through the mails.

For a non-daily, this is quite a reach, roughly 2,500 square miles of distribution and news to cover.

Those Herald columns most assuredly reach a wide audience.

Job Seekers Lured North By Coming Oil Pipeline

By Betzi Woodman

ANCHORAGE, Alaska
Reuter -- Alaska state and city officials are worried about the steady stream of job seekers lured north by reports of high wages and the coming oil pipeline construction.

An estimated 18,000 jobs will become available when construction gets underway on the 790 mile pipeline between the North Slope oil fields and the port of Valdez. But work on ever part of the project will not begin until after the first of the year at least and Alaska state law gives hiring preference to local residents.

An insured unemployment rate of 10.2 per cent among Alaskan workers reveals the need. Yet hopeful job seekers from across the nation are already flooding the labor markets.

Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., the consortium of oil companies which will build the 3.5 billion dollar hot oil pipeline, reports it is receiving some 20 telephone calls, ten to 12 walk-ins and 35 to 40 letters a day from outside jobseekers.

Gus Caterinichi, business manager of the Laborers and Hod Carriers Local 341 in Anchorage says his union used to get one or two inquiries a day about the pipeline. But this number is increasing daily. "This is a heck-of-a time to come up here," he says. "We have a large percentage of our membership here who are out of work. We could satisfy pipeline construction labor demands with available Alaskans." He said there are 400-500 men in his own 1,100-member union alone who are now without work.

Although Alaska has always lured adventurous people, particularly single men with job hopes and new surroundings, the problem now is worsened by arrival of families who have hocked about everything to make the long trek north. Many come in homemade campers -- converted schoolbuses, plywood tops on ancient pickup trucks, vans stuffed with basic housekeeping needs and children. They are unprepared for the living costs and particularly unready for winter rigors.

The interior city of Fairbanks, closest to the Alaska highway, beckons first. Its warm, often hot summer days lull the new arrivals who cannot conceive of the coming 40 and 50 degree below zero weather which could come as early as November.

The many tourist campgrounds have had to put up time limits for campers because new arrivals, finding prohibitive rents and no jobs, try to live in their cars at these facilities.

Lee Dalby, director of the state employment security division, says their regular "fan mail" of job inquiries went from 32 in June to 99 in July and up to nearly 300 in August. "In 1970 we had 27,000 inquiries for jobs during the year," he reports. "We expect in excess of 35,000 inquiries in this next fiscal year... and most of these will be in regard to the pipeline." Dalby's division answers all inquiries, telling the applicant bluntly there is no construction now on the pipeline, that its contingent on permits being authorized and that only when the joint senate and house conference committee resolves its differences will things "may be get going."

Many of the new arrivals were unemployed in their previous residence, and seek welfare assistance in Alaska. Numbers applying for food stamps, housing and other forms of relief are increasing daily.

Carl John, senior community organizer for the Greater Anchorage Area Community Action Agency says her agency gets about six inquiries a day and about seven families per day arrive in Anchorage looking for pipeline connected work. Welfare aid, she points out, will be difficult to get. Alaska does not have welfare benefits for families in which both parents are in the home -- no "unemployed father grants." And there are no facilities to care for families and welfare funding is not adequate.

Major Survey To Study World Population Growth

By Jola Zaludova

VIENNA

Reuter -- Statisticians throughout the world are preparing for a major survey on human fertility, designed to provide basic data in efforts to curb a global population explosion.

Backed by the United Nations, the world fertility survey will probe into population growth patterns in about 80 countries, with detailed questions put to some 20,000 families in each country.

The survey, organized by the International Statistical Institute from its headquarters at The Hague, is described as the biggest sampling of opinion of its kind ever undertaken, to provide facts on a subject which scientists say lacks adequate documentation.

Throughout the world, especially in the developing countries, husbands and wives will be asked questions about age, sex, attitudes towards the size of families and towards birth control and about their marital history. Questioners will note whether women, prefer breast-feeding or other methods.

The project will start in mid 1974 as part of what has been designated by the U. N. World Population Year and is expected to take three years to complete.

It will cost an estimated $20 million. Initial funds have been provided by the U. S. Agency for International Development (A.I.D.) and the U. N.

The project is being undertaken mainly because of a lack of information about population trends which inhibits planners from working out reliable population policies.

"Policy-makers aiming at influencing population growth are acting more or less in the dark," says Dr. Peter Jakob Bjerve, Norway's director-general of statistics and president of the International Statistical Institute.

Dr. Bjerve described plans for the fertility survey at a conference of 1,000 statisticians organized by the institute in Vienna in late August.

According to U. N. Projections, world population is likely to grow from 3,600 million in 1970 to 6,500 million in the year 2000. By the year 2343, the total, based on projected birth and death rates, may reach 13,000 million.

"Environmental and resource problems, which are increasingly being recognized as a major area of world concern, may become intolerable within the time span of a few generations if the world birth and death pattern," Dr. Bjerve told the Vienna conference.

"In some less developed countries, not even the size of the population or the approximate magnitude of population growth is known. Part of the numerical information available is of such low quality that it may be more harmful than useful for purposes of population policy."

Dr. Bjerve says that the gathering of better factual data on population trends "appears to be one of today's most challenging tasks for the statistician."

A British statistician, Dr. Maurice G. Kendall, formerly of London School of Economics, has been named as project director for the survey which will be coordinated by the International Statistical Institute in conjunction with the International Union for the Scientific U. N.

"The survey will facilitate national efforts in economic, social and health planning," Dr. Kendall said.

Although most governments are ready to cooperate, there is no indication yet of participation by China and the Soviet Union, two of the world's largest population areas.

"We are planning to send groups of experts to all participating countries to interview married couples on their attitude towards having children and family planning," said Professor Bernard Benjamin of London,

Computer Dating Sweeps London

By Peter Griffiths
LONDON

Reuter -- Computer dating -- an electronic attempt to sort out the age-old problem of how boy meets girl -- is sweeping the love hungry singles of London.

Now the vogue, thriving for the past few years, has prompted a warning from a leading British scientist, who challenges its claims.

"In a single flash of electronic brilliance Dateline provides a supply of partners who are absolutely right for you" -- anyway that is what the glossy brochure issued by Britain's biggest computer dating company claims.

One of the country's leading computer experts has now condemned computer dating as futile and ominous.

The warning that computers make stupid cupid came from Dr. Igor Aleksander. He said, "No one in the world knows what chemistry is at work when two people fall in love, least of all a computer."

"The claim that some scientific match has been made is obviously misleading," Aleksander added.

One person who disagrees is petite Jennie Egan, a 24-year-old blonde sociology graduate who runs "Contact Computer Dating" -- one of the half a dozen love-by-transistor firms now operating in this country.

Miss Egan said that when she read about Aleksander and his speech, "I thought he sounded just the kind of Person I am sure I could help."

"We are not in any sense a marriage bureau," she said. "People just pay us a pound (2.5 dollars) for compatible dates and we supply just that."

"Our mail proves that people do make lasting relationships with the opposite sex. If marriage results -- well that is a bonus we charge no extra for."

"Anyway I do hope Dr. Aleksander will accept my offer," Miss Egan added. "He sounds rather sweet."

Dateline, which has centers in Paris and Bonn as well as London, charges between $25 and $40 for its service and says it has had over 300,000 clients in seven years of operations.

The computer firms do not conduct personal interviews. They send out questionnaires which, when returned, are converted into computer punch cards.

New Spud Sensations Cheese Mashed Potato

Looking for a good vegetable dish to serve to a crowd? Cheese Mashed Potatoes could be your answer. Our recipe for creamy mashed potatoes seasoned with sharp Cheddar cheese and freshly chopped onion is great for a buffet or family gathering. A perfect dish with any entree, consider serving it with baked ham, beef, poultry, lamb or fish.

"Are potatoes fattening?" you may ask. The answer is "No, not in themselves. It's what you add to them that accounts for a high calorie count." In fact, potatoes should be included in a reducing diet because they have a lot of vitamins and minerals. One baked potato (100 grams or 3½ ounces, edible portion) provides merely 93 Calories.

Cheese Mashed Potatoes

3 pounds (about 9 medium) potatoes
Boiling water
1 tablespoon salt
1 cup hot milk
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 cup (4 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese
2 tablespoons finely chopped fresh onion

Pare and quarter potatoes. Place in saucepan with 1 inch boiling water and salt. Cover and cook until soft, about 15 minutes. Drain. Turn into large mixing bowl and mash well. Add hot milk, pepper and butter and beat until fluffy. Add cheese and onion. Mix well. Serve hot.

Makes: 10 servings.

Kubiak Calls For Finance Revision

Rep. Dan Kubiak, chairman of the House Education Committee, released a statement on the Governor's lack of action on financing public schools. The statement follows:

"The Governor of Texas has done everything possible to prevent any revision of the present outmoded, inadequate and inequitable method of financing public schools, including threatening a major tax increase."

"He has opposed House Bill 946, a plan to revise the financing of public schools during the last session of the Legislature, saying funds were not available."

"The Governor can no longer hide behind his excuse that funds are not presently available. This week we have been informed by the State Comptroller there are $109 million unexpended in the State Treasury. These funds are available without new taxes!"

"If the Governor is seriously concerned with solving the greatest crisis currently facing Texas, it is his duty to the children of Texas to call a special session to revise the present method of school finance, to distribute the available state funds in an equitable manner, and to establish a program of educational quality for Texas."

"September 20, I presented to the Speaker of the House the recommendations approved by the House Education Committee. Our report includes the Committee's resolution calling for a special session by September of 1974."

"A plan is available and the funds are available without a tax increase. There is not reason for one more study, there is only reason for action!"

Baylor To Receive $1 Million

Baylor University has been designated to receive a $1 million endowment fund to be used in establishing an H. R. Gibson Chair in management development in the graduate division of Baylor's Hankamer School of Business.

Announcement of the gift was made at a recent banquet in Dallas. Baylor President Abner V. McCall was a special guest at the banquet, which was attended by several hundred Gibson Discount Center owners, managers and employees.

Contributions to the endowment fund will be donated by owners of Gibson store franchises and other Gibson business associates who wish to honor and perpetuate the name of H. R. Gibson, founder of the discount chain.

Terrys Implement To Sell New Deutz Tractors

Terrys Implement Co. of Cameron has been appointed as a franchised dealer for Deutz air-cooled diesel farm tractors in this area. The announcement was made by J. L. Burnett, district manager of the Memphis Branch of Deutz Tractor Corporation.

Terrys Implement Co. will carry a complete line of the tractors, parts and accessories. Full service facilities will be offered by the firm to farmers.

Deutz tractors are manufactured in West Germany by K-H-D (Klockner-Humboldt-Deutz), the world's oldest and largest manufacturer of air-cooled diesel engines. They are sold worldwide and have been on the American market for a number of years.

Commenting on the appointment, Burnett said, "we are very happy to have Terry's Implement Co. as our dealer in this area. They were selected because they fully met the high standards we establish for Deutz tractor dealers."

Burnett stated that the new dealer has specially trained mechanics in his service department. Parts are readily available at the dealer's and a backup supply is carried at the Deutz Memphis branch and at the company's central parts department in Atlanta.

Julian, Steve, and Paul said they welcome the opportunity to sell and service the new line of tractors. "We feel," they said, "that we are in a better position than ever to meet the tractor needs of farmers in this area."

Deutz tractors are available in a full range of sizes, from 32 to 125 pto horsepower. All features air-cooled diesel engines.

LEADER IN TEXAS

William J. Kuhfuss, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, and the executive committee of the Texas Farm Bureau recently reviewed agricultural production and educational programs of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service during a two-day tour. Kuhfuss said he was "impressed by the vital agricultural production programs and educational guidelines developed by Extension to help people improve their overall level of living."

Boll Weevil Tests Successful

STARKVILLE, Miss.

A three-state experiment to eradicate the boll weevil shows that the billion-dollar insect can be stamped out as an economic cotton pest in the United States.

Eradication would lower by 30 per cent the total insecticide load placed into the environment by all American farmers.

The two-year long experiment, conducted on some 18,000 acres of cotton in southern Mississippi and adjacent areas of Louisiana and Alabama, was cooperatively sponsored by cotton growers through their company, Cotton Incorporated, and agencies of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the three participating states.

The technical guidance committee for the experiment met at Mississippi State University's huge entomological complex here to hear summary reports following the conclusion of the test in August.

Final monitorings of native weevil populations in the eradication test area revealed no infestations in the core zone. In buffer zones extending outward in concentric circles, where suppression measures were employed to protect the core zone, weevil counts were negligible.

The committee issued a statement declaring elimination of the weevil as an economic factor in cotton production is technically and operationally feasible, using techniques that are ecologically acceptable.

Economic and environmental benefits of eliminating the boll weevil would far exceed any costs that might be incurred, the committee reported.

Techniques used in the eradication experiment included the application of insecticides, pheromone traps, trap crops, the release of sterile male weevils, and cultural controls, such as restricted planting dates, early stalk destruction following harvest, and the use of cotton growth inhibitors.

"All suppression techniques employed in the experiment were ecologically sound," said Dr. J. R. Brazzel of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, co-chairman of the technical guidance committee.

The eradication experiment was deliverably placed in an area representative of the most severe boll weevil conditions likely to be encountered anywhere in the country.

"We are confident that if elimination of the boll weevil could be demonstrated in that area, the pest could be eliminated anywhere else in the United States," said committee co-chairman Dr. E. F. Knipping of USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

Brazzel and Knipping said the committee recommended that while plans for launching a national eradication campaign are being developed, research be intensified to improve the techniques used in the experiment and to make them more economical to use.

Yoemen - West Battle To Tie

The Cameron Yoemen finally met a combination that threatened the one of George Whiteside and Willie Bell Friday night as the Cameron Yoemen and the West Trojans battled to a 14-14 tie. The threatening combination was led by Trojan quarterback David Snokhous and end Kenneth Taylor.

Both teams successfully operated their offensive game plans, but neither team perfected them. The Cameron Yoemen stuck to their explosive ground game with George Whiteside gaining 134 yards, Jafus White 62, and Willie Bell 27.

Meanwhile, the West Trojans operated a smooth passing attack with David Snok-hous completing 7 out of 13 for 91 yards and 2 touchdowns, both to end Kenneth Taylor.

However, the Yoemen were hurt more by careless fumbles than by the passing of Snokhous. The first Yoe fumble halted a Cameron drive on the West 5 yard line and the second placed West in good field position on the Cameron 44.

The Yoemen began the scoring with only 10:22 left in the first quarter when Yoe powerhouse, George Whiteside, carried 55 yards over right tackle for the touchdown. The extra point attempt was unsuccessful and the Yoemen settled for a 6-0 lead.

The Trojans bounced right back following a fumble recovery on the Cameron 44 with their Snokhous to Taylor passing combination. West drove 46 yards in 6 plays, scoring on a 10 yard pass from Snokhous to Taylor. The extra point was good and West took the lead 7-6 with 4:58 left in the first quarter.

Following the Trojan kickoff, Cameron, guided by Quarterback Jeff Smitherman, drove down to the West 3 yard line, but turned the ball over on downs to West at this point.

The Trojans were unable to pickup a first down and were forced to punt the ball away from their own 3 yard line. Jafus White returned the Trojan punt 15 yards to the West 35, giving the Yoemen excellent field position.

Yoe Quarterback Jeff Smitherman went to work completing two passes, one to Gary Horning to the West 34 and another to Ronnie Bennett to the West 18. Two plays later George Whiteside scored the go-ahead touchdown around right end, giving the Yoemen a 12-7 lead. Jafus White passed to Bell for the two point conversion increasing the lead to 14-7.

However, the Trojans came back once again and tied the game up with 2:27 left in the first half. The touchdown was once again a pass from Snokhous to Taylor for 3 yards on a crucial 4th down play. The

Buckholts Takes Milford 46-18

The Buckholts Badgers scored an impressive victory over Milford Friday night, 46-18, in six-man football play.

Buckholts fans were brought to life early as tailback Larry Orsag took the opening kickoff and returned it 70 yards for the first Buckholts touchdown.

The second Badger touchdown was scored by Early Webb on a fine 45-yard scamper. Orsag added the extra points.

Buckholts offense continued to runaway the remainder of the first half, scoring 3 more times.

Scoring for the Badgers were, Roesler on an Orsag pass, Orsag on a Danny Krall pass, and Krall on a fumble recovery in the end zone. Buckholts led 33-0 at half-time.

Milford came back the second half stronger than before and scored three times, twice by Dennis and once by Wayne Smith. However Buckholts didn't let up, and Carl Tomasek and Orsag scored for the Badgers during the second half. The final score was Buckholts 46 Milford 18.

Buckholts has two more games before they begin district play. Next week, Sept. 27, they will play Aquilla in Aquilla and Oct. 5 they will meet Abbott in Buckholts.

Tigers Fall To R'bud-Lott

The Rosebud-Lott Cougars caged the Rockdale Tigers Friday night at Cougar stadium with a 29-21 victory.

It seemed to be strictly an offensive ball game as the Cougars totaled 361 yards and the Tigers totaled 193.

Scott carried 26 times for 195 yards for Rosebud-Lott and fullback Parker Peebles was the leading gainer for Rockdale with 26 carries for 113 yards.

The Tigers scored first on a 40 yard drive in 6 plays with Peebles carrying over right guard for the touchdown. John Backhaus kicked the extra point and Rockdale led 7-0.

The Cougars narrowed the Tiger lead to 7-6 minutes later as Terry Tomlinson sprinted 34 yards on the first play of the second half. The extra point attempt was unsuccessful.

Three plays after the Rosebud - Lott kickoff, Backhaus fumbled and Charles Thornton recovered at the Tiger 32. Four plays later the Cougars scored as Scott broke away for 23 yards and a Cougar touchdown. Scott then ran for the extra points and Rosebud-Lott led 14-7.

The Cougars lead didn't last long as Henry Breckwith ran through the middle on a 23 yard touchdown run. Backhaus passed to halfback Odie Mack for the two point conversion and Rockdale led 15-14.

However, on the first play after the Tiger kickoff, the Cougars regained their lead as Scott ran 80 yards for a Cougar touchdown. Tomlinson carried for the 2 extra points and Rosebud-Lott led 22-15 at half-time.

Each team scored one more time during the second half. Rockdale scored late in the third quarter on a Backhaus to Beckwith pass, and Rosebud-Lott scored with 9:29 left in the ball game on a Scott to Henry Zeno passing combination, thus clinching a 29-21 victory.

Powdered Alfalfa Juice Could Cut Grocery Bill

Alfalfa juice may be just the thing to cure those beef price blues.

The juice would not be for drinking, but converted into a powder that is 90 percent protein. It could give meat substitutes more protein value than a prime cut steak.

The United States Department of Agriculture has begun turning out about three pounds of the white powder an hour at a test plant in California. Said one official: "I think we are opening a new era in food production."

HAS BROAD APPLICATION
The concentrate could be used to boost the protein content of breads, pastries, and pastas, soups, stews, and ground meats, and other processed foods, the National Geographic Society says.

Fish protein concentrate -- a powder made from won the Food and Drug Administration's approval for human consumption, after a decade of testing. It may be years before the new concentrated alfalfa protein is accepted.

Though alfalfa is the world's oldest and most important forage crop, it was many years before it could be grown in the United States. George Washington and Thomas Jefferson tried cultivating it, but the European variety of the plant failed in the leached, acidic soil.

That species was a de-cayed into Greece by the Medes and Persians around 400 B.C. and probably introduced to Europe and Britain by Roman Legions.

A harder Asian variety had been introduced to Spain by the invading Moors. In the 16th century, Spanish gold-seekers brought this variety with them to South America, where later gold-seekers found it.

Forty-niners, bound West around Cape Horn, picked up the plant in Chile and took it with them as forage for their animals. By 1854, "Chilean clover" flourished in California and soon spread to other parts of the country.

SOWN ACROSS NATION
By the turn of the century, more than 2,000,000 acres of alfalfa were being harvested for hay, nearly all in the Western States.
More than 27,654,000 acres are planted in alfalfa across the Nation today.

The crop is used for pasture and forage, cut for hay and dehydrated for meal and industrial processing.

A process developed by the United States Agricultural Research Service at Berkeley, California, separates the protein and pigment from freshly squeezed alfalfa juice during dehydration. It provides a high-protein feed supplement that is used in the poultry industry.

Deep green, with a strong,
grassy taste, it is not suitable for human consumption.
But now the researchers at Berkeley have found a way to separate white protein from the green, through heating and centrifuging.

After washing and drying, the white powder is a bland tasting food additive that is nearly all protein.
